FIFA WOMEN'S WORLD CUP 2023™ AUSTRALIA'S BID

Football Federation Australia Bidding to Host next FIFA Women's World Cup in 2023

Australia's Bid to host the FIFA Women's World Cup in 2023 is the chance to inspire everyone, because the opportunities are limitless.

Football is the world game, and Australia's Bid gives players and fans the chance to showcase our vibrant and multicultural nation to the world.

The fastest growing area of football in Australia is women's and girls' participation. Hosting the FIFA Women's World Cup supports FFA's goal of reaching 50:50 gender participation by 2027, as well as more opportunities for women to lead all areas of the game as coaches, officials and administrators.

Football Federation Australia is collaborating closely with both the Federal and State Governments to prepare a strong Bid. The other confirmed bidding nations are Argentina, Bolivia, Brazil, Colombia, Japan, Korea Republic (a potential joint Bid with Korea DPR), New Zealand, and South Africa.

For more information on Australia's Bid to host the FIFA Women's World Cup in 2023, visit www.ausbid2023.com.

AUSTRALIAN WOMEN'S NATIONAL TEAM HISTORY

The Pioneers

The historic first Australian women's team was established in 1978 to take part in the first World Women's Invitational Tournament in Chinese Taipei. Australia was the only national team in the tournament with the other twelve countries represented by club or district teams. Australia's squad for the tournament, selected by first Australian women's team coach Jim Selby, consisted of players mainly from NSW and Western Australia. Captain Connie Byrnes had the honour of captaining the first Australian senior national women's team.

In the first round of matches Australia was missed sixth place only on goal difference. The Australians then competed in the second round for teams placed seventh to thirteenth, ultimately finishing eighth in the tournament. Australia's results of the 1978 World Women's Invitational Tournament in Chinese Taipei: W1-0 v Landhaus (Austria), D1-1 v Dallas Sting (United States), L0-1 v Hackas IF (Sweden), D0-0 v Denmark Select and W5-0 v Thailand Select. Young Australian Anna Senjuschenko (who tragically died in a car accident in 1979 aged 17) was voted a star player of the tournament by the media, while Connie Byrnes was awarded 'Miss Football' for Australia.

Australia's first games against another national team was a tied three-match series against New Zealand in 1979 (one win each, one draw), played in Sydney (two games) and Brisbane. Australia travelled to New Zealand for another three games in 1980 and won the series following two draws, in Auckland and Wellington, and a victory in the third game in Christchurch.

The women's team played on sporadic occasions throughout the 1980s, with only a limited number of major international competitions enticing much attention to the team. The decade was highlighted by a win against Brazil in China at the 1988 FIFA Invitational Tournament, which was effectively a pilot World Cup. The introduction of the FIFA Women's World Cup and women's football at the Olympic Games in the 1990s, combined with a surge in participation levels throughout the country, sparked renewed interest in the national women's team.

FIFA World Cups – improving performances

After barely being beaten out of a place at the inaugural FIFA Women's World Cup in China in 1991 on goal difference (by New Zealand in the Oceania qualifiers), the Australian women's national team has never failed to qualify for the World Cup. Australia finished as top team in Oceania in the 1995, 1999 and 2003 Oceania World Cup qualifiers, and qualified for the 2007 finals via Asia for the first time after reaching the final of the 2006 AFC Asian Women's Championship in Adelaide. Australia qualified for the 2007 FIFA World Cup after defeating Japan in the semi-final 2-0 (top three nations in the tournament qualified for the FIFA World Cup); the final however saw Australia go down to China only after a penalty shoot-out, to finish runners-up in the tournament. The Aussies went that one better in a memorable 2010 AFC Asian Women's Cup in China, defeating the highly-fancied Korea DPR side on penalties in the final following a 2-2 scoreline after 120 minutes of play and earning the country another shot at the FIFA World Cup.

Australia appeared to gradually learn and improve throughout each of its first few FIFA World Cup forays, as the aggregate goal differences over each World Cup shows: a goals for-and-against record of 3-13 (minus 10) in its 1995 FIFA World Cup matches reduced to minus 4 in 1999, and went down to minus 2 in the 2003 campaign. By the 2007 tournament, Australia attained a positive goal difference over the four matches, which included its first FIFA World Cup finals win (4-1 over Ghana) and progression past the group stage. Australia reached the knock-out phase again in the 2011 edition after disposing of Norway in its final group match, before losing out to Sweden at the Quarter Final stage. At the 2015 FIFA World Cup in Canada, Australia won its first knock-out stage game with a 1-0 win over Brazil in the Round of 16, only to lose to eventual finalist Japan in the following match.

Recent form – among the world's best

Since the 2011 World Cup, Australia has maintained a FIFA top ten ranking (apart from a rank of 11 in March 2014). Australia continued its dominance in the Asian region over this time with a runners-up placing at the 2014 AFC Women's Asian Cup and qualifying for the 2016 Olympic Games. At the 2016 Olympics, Australia only went down at the Quarter Final stage on penalties to host national Brazil after a marathon extra-time nil-all draw.

Against the United States, Japan and Brazil, the green and gold performed strongly at the last two editions of the Tournament of Nations in the United States, finishing on top of the round-robin tournament ladder in 2017 and second (on goal difference) in 2018. Australia enters the 2019 FIFA World Cup in France ranked six in the world.
